“ Dear PawPaw.....

That smile....it won't ever leave my head. You always had a smart remark for everything my grammaw said. You always told her you loved her, and the same to your kids. I try to piece this whole thing together, but these pieces just don't fit. I'm sorry.....its all that I can say. I still smile, but while I smile, tears still run down my face. Its like a part of me is gone, and all of your family feels the same. At least I know you're up in heaven and you're no longer in pain. But even tho we cry and we wish you were here, we know you wouldn't want this so we wipe away our tears. I'm trying to stay strong, and I guess I'm doing well. But, its been six days without you now; six days since my heart fell. You told me to graduate and take care of your wife. If I do that, you'll congratulate me and hold me again, right? I mean, I know, you can't, and that's perfectly fine.....don't give away too many cheek kisses; all of those are mine. You gave me this rosary, and I gave you mine. Just know I know you're with me, even after its become my time....<3
