“ Linda will always be remembered fondly as a second sister. My older sister (Carol) and Linda were best friends since kindergarten. I remember Linda, Carol, and our cousin “Bumpy”, and I playing in our grandparents yard. As they entered their pre-teen year, they would pretend to be the Supremes with Carol imitating Diana Ross, Linda imitating Florence Ballard, which meant I was Mary Wilson. I remember their high school years (I was allowed to tag along) when they attended football and basketball games, giggled about boys, and ate White Castle hamburgers.

I was so proud of Linda when she became an attorney. Always smart, she excelled in many things.

I will miss you Linda, but we will see you again – in heaven. Love you!

“ I am Linda's niece Penny Jarmon. We had some good times. I recall she loaned her car to me and my friend Becky when we began college at SIUE. We spent time having Mary Kay parties, going to movies, dancing to Bruce Springsteen, and listening to comedy Albums. I loved the time I spent at hers, aunt Masey and uncle Oliver's (her parent's) house watching movies and laughing. She was a great cook too and would prepare food like an Army was coming to eat. I also remember how when she watched tv she would shake her legs. The funniest memory is when her mom (who had Alzheimer's) thought she was part of the floor and walked step on back and kept walking. I laughed until I cried.LOL

There is so much more I could talk about but I would be writing a book. I am sickly myself now and didn't have the opportunity to spend any time with her. The last time I spoke with her was when she was in the hospital for a sickness. I called to check on her and she sounded okay. I will dwell on the good times. They will always make me smile.
